This was very well for Judge Cariter. He is a Republican appointee and can eny such things, and the Capital, being Republican, can repeat them. But if Mr. Young or the APPRAL, being southern, were to say and repeat them, there would go up a howl of rebel and parsecution of the negro of which we should never bear the last. But it was not against the negro particularly that Mr. Young directed him eech. He knows it would not do to permanently shut the any class of the people; that the halls of legislation are theirs, to which they have ever had, and we hope ever will have, and which would give to the Republicans another foundation stope on which to rest their cry of routhern and Democratic intelerance.
